Farmers invited to free program on managing tight margins

(January 8, 2016)

Area farmers are invited to a free program on “Managing your way through tight margins” on January 18 at Bridges Restaurant, 201 Christensen Dr. in Darlington. Sponsored by Investors Community Bank and Investors Insurance Services, the program begins at 10:30 AM, with complimentary lunch to follow.

With the agriculture sector currently caught up in a margin squeeze, this educational program will address what dairy and crop farmers can do to weather the current storm. Discussion will include:

- An economic outlook for dairy and crop farmers, from futures expert Chris Atten, Atten Babler Commodities LLC and Atten Babler Risk Management LLC
- How banks are dealing with tighter margins, from Steve Fleming, Senior Agricultural Banker at Investors Community Bank
- How to tailor your crop insurance policies to adjust for shrinking margins, from ag insurance agents at Investors Insurance Services. They will also compare performance between USDA’s Milk Margin Protection Program versus the popular Livestock Gross Margin Dairy program.

Pre-registration is required by contacting an ag insurance agent at Investors Insurance Services: Jessica Stemper, (262) 689-42431; Aaron Gransee, (920) 905-5425; or Kyle Salter, (920) 960-1011; or emailing jzurcher@investorscommunitybank.com.
